To the Right Honourable

T HOMAS

LORD Malton, and KNIGHT of the Most Honourable Order of the BATH.

May it pleafe Your Lordanie:

the following English Translation of the New Testament, made by that great and worthy Confessor Dr. John Wielif, I thought it might be a dutiful Acknowledgment of the Favour I lately received from your Lordship to make you a Present of it. I hoped it would be a Pleasure to Your Lordship, who has so high an Esteem for that sacred Book, and whose Conduct is so particularly influenc'd by the Principles of it, to see an English Translation of it made in those dark Times by one who was a Native of the County where Your made in those dark Times by one who was a Native of the County where Your Lord/hip chooses to reside. It is now above an Age and an Half ago since that learned and active Prelate Matthew Parker printed the Four Gospels in the English Saxon Tongue, to shew, as His Grace said, that in Times past the Holy Scriptures were known to the People of England in their Vulgar Tongue. The sollowing Translation is an Evidence of their being likewise known in the English spoken after the Conquest, tho' with this Difference, that as before the People's Reading and Hearing the Scriptures in their own Tongue was approved of as agreeable to the Christian Institution, their doing so was now condemned as Heretical. As 'tis the Nature of Things, when once corrupted, to wax worse and worse, so it was now not only determined, that it was Heresy to affirm, it was necessary to have the Scriptures translated into the Vulgar Tongue, but that the People should be driven by Force from the reading of them. So much Reason had our learned Apologist Apologist Bp. Jewel to observe of the pretended Catholics, Nescio quo pacto, resverentiane, an conscientia, an desperatione victoriæ, ut latro crucem ita isti semper borrent et sugiunt Verbum Dei.

SINCE the Reformation indeed they have not in some Parts of the Romish Church absolutely denied the People the * Liberty of reading the Holy Scriptures in their Mother Tongue, particularly in France and here in England. But it has been remarked, that the People have been dealt with very infincerely, in that they have had obtruded on them the Vulgar Latin as the authentic Copy of the Bible; and had recommended to them Translations as truly made from the Vulgar which in Truth are not fo. But to shew, that even this is a Sort of Compulfion, whenever Opportunity has ferved, and they have had it in their Power, the English Translations of this Book have been burnt and destroyed. One Proof of this of a late Date I beg leave to mention to Your Lord/bip. In a † second Remonstrance, prepared by those appointed by Commission under the Great Seal of Ireland to enquire into the late Rebellion there, dated June 16. 18 Car. 1643, the Original of which I have now before me fign'd by Four of the Commissioners, among other Facts mentioned of the Hatred and Aversion of those Catholic Rebels to our Holy Religion, this is one; that at one Time they burnt One Hundred and Forty Bibles because they were in English. This shews, that whatever Arts have been lately used to soften the Principles of the Romish Church and make them look more human than they appeared at the Reformation, Popery is still the same cruel, tyrannical Imposition on the common Faith and Sense of Christians that ever it was: and that if there are not so many Instances now of its savage Temper it's only for Want of Power and Opportunity.

THIS old English Translation which I now present to Your Lordship is made, Your Lordship knows, from the Vulgar Latin as the former one was in the Saxons Times. This Latin Translation was now commonly read in Churches, which being unintelligible to the People, and to some even of the Priests, Dr. Wielif rendred it into English almost Word for Word, that, as is said in a Presace before the Translation of the Psalter, they that knews not the Latin might by the English come to many Latin Words. On this Account the Translation is rather too Verbal and not always good English: But, Your Lordship will observe, it's notwithstanding as intelligible to an English Reader as the Translation made at Rheims for the Use of the English Roman Catholicks 200 Years after, as not leaving so many of the Original Words retained in the Latin untranslated into English.

THE English Language had undergone a very great Alteration by the Coming in of the Normans about $ 300 Years before this Translation was made. Since the many of the Monosyllables were still continued as they are to this Day, and the

^{*} That they had not this Liberty or Allowance before feems plain from what Sir The: More proposed, wis that as nere as may be desifed no man have the Holy Scripture but of the Ordinarie's hand, and by him thought and reputed for fach as shall be lykely to ase it to Goddys honour and meryte of his owner foats. Dialoges book iii. ch. 16.

On it is endorfed Rees at the board x Novembr. 1643, and fignd Hen: Jones, who was Dean of Kilmere, Randatt Adams, Henry Brereton, Edward Pigett.

Mr. Wharton, by comparing the ancient Charters granted by the Norman Princes, observes, that the English Saxon Language began to be wholly disuled in the Reign of Hen: II. or about A. D. 1160. fomewhat above 200 Years before Wielist Translation.

the Characters for some Time not altered, the Saxon Compounds and De-compounds grew many of them out of Use, and in their stead French Words and Phrases were introduced. Trevisa indeed, who lived a little after Dr. Wielis, tells us, that in his Time this Humour of learning and speaking French was somewhat abated, and that gentlemen had much less for to teach their children french. However, our Language was by that Time so much changed, that the sormer Translation of the New Testament was become perfectly unintelligible to the common People, so that a New Translation was necessary. And the present Publication of it is so far of Use to us, that it serves to explain the Meaning of a great many Words still retained in the English Translations of the Bible and Psalter now in Use.

TO this old English Translation of the New Testament I have præfixed a History of the several Translations of the Holy Scriptures into English from the Beginning, in which I have been somewhat affisted by Your Lordship's noble and well-chosen Library. This, my Lord, is what has been often attempted and performed in part by both Foreigners and our own Country-men. F. Simon, Du-pin, Le Long, Boernerus, Rumpæus, &c. abroad, and Ulber, Fuller, Durell, Burnet, Wharton and Strype, with some others of lesser Name here at home, have obliged the World with some Account of them. I have done all I could, with the Help and Affiftance of my Friends, particularly those two very learned and excellent Men Mr. Thomas Baker of the College in which Your Lordship was educated, and Dr. Daniel Waterland, to supply their Omissions and to give as exact and authentic an Account of the several English Bibles, Testaments, Psalters, &c. which from time to time have been printed, as I could possibly get : tho' indeed I have not often gone out of my Way, and as feldom as possible found any in it to expose their Mistakes; being no wife enclined to try to gain my felf a Reputation by lessening that of others.

WITH these several Translations of the Holy Scriptures into English, a late Buffoon, who personates what he calls a Catholic, tries to make himself and the grinning Spectators of his Tricks as merry as they can be with his low Wit and staring Lies. The Ground-Work of his Fable are Gregory Martin's and the Rhemists idle Tales and Mis-representations of the English Translations in Use in K. Henry VIII. Edw. VI. and Q. Elizabeth's Reigns; which tho', like the Stories of our present Free-Thinkers, they have long fince been again and again confuted, this Merry-Andrew like them trumps up afresh to divert his ignorant Gapers. He would fain make his Readers believe, contrary to common Sense and plain Eyefight, that besides our corrupting our Bibles against all or most Points of Catholie, he means Roman-catholic, Doctrine, we even change the ancient Catholic and accustomed Use of Words of Scripture into now devised Terms, as for Holy Ghost, Holy Wind: because instead of the old English Word Ghost our Translators sometimes use the Latin Word Spirit, which, it's well known, is the Meaning of the Word Gast or Breath. But thus, like the Roman Soldiers, who made our B. Saviour the Subject of their Mockery by dreffing him out of Character, does this Scoffer try to render the English Reformation to the utmost ridiculous, by putting on it a Fool's Coat and arraying it in doggrel Hudibrastical Rhyme. BUT

BUT I fear I am too tedious and have detained Your Lordship longer than I should. I shall therefore only add my most sincere Prayers, that the great Author and Preserver of our Faith would long continue Your Lordship to adorn the Doctrine of GOD our Saviour in all Things, and am with the most perfect Esteem and sincerest Gratitude for Your Lordship's Favours,

May it please Your Lordship,

YOUR LORDSHIPS most Dutiful,

most Obliged, and most Obediens Chaplain,

J. LEWIS.

N fitting the following old English Translation of the New Testament for the Press, which is a valuable Cariosity, and of great Use to those English Men who are desirous to understand their Mother Tongue, the Editor has been much affifted by the Reverend Dr. Daniel Waterland who collated the Editor's Copy with ten MSS. of this Translation in the Libraries at Cambridge. The some learned Person was at the Trouble of Transcribing for the Editor's Use Some of the lessons and pistlis of the colde lawe that ben rad in the Chirche bi al the yeer aftir the use of Salisburi in the Order in which they are placed at the End of a MS of the New Testament that was Sir William Pepys's, and by him given to the Library of Magdalen Coll: in Cambridge. But thefe the Editor was fore'd to lay by for want of Encouragement. The Editor himself had the Use of two MSS. one lent him by the Honourable Sir Edward Dering Baronet of Surendendering, and another of his own. He had likewife fent him from Oxford Specimens of the most noted MSS. of this Translation in that famous University, viz. Three in the Libraries of Christ-Church, Queen's-College, and St. John's, and Three in the Bodleian-Library. By collating them it appeared to him, that thefe MSS. are generally written with so much Care and Exactness, that there are in them but few Variations, and they not material.

In drawing up the History of the several English Translations and their most remarkable Editions in Print, (which is no inconsiderable Part of the Historia Literaria, and in perusing which the Reader sees with Pleasure the gradual Improvements which have been made in this Part of Learning and Knowledge) the Editor thinks himself obliged to own the great Helps he has had from the above-mentioned learned Friend, and the Reverend Thomas Baker, B. D. and from the Collections made on this Subject, tho with a more extended View, by the reverend and ingenious William Jacomb Vicar of Marden in Kent. He had likewise by the Favour of other Friends, particularly the late learned and communicative John Evans, D.D, the Inspection of several other very rare and uncommon Editions of the English Bible and New Testament. But in giving an Account of so great a Variety of Incidents, the Editor thinks be has Reason to fear, that, notwithstanding all his Care, there are some Mislakes made which will need the Candour of the Reader: Tho he hopes they aren't very great, but only such as human Frailty is apt to slide into. Of this, however, he dares be consident, that he has spared no Cost nor Pains to find out the Truth, and

At the End of all is added a Glossary to explain the obsolete Words in this old Translation, which the Editor presumes to recommend as more perfect than any other Part of this Performance, it having been revised and corrected and had many Additions made to it by the able and accurate Hand of the forementioned Dr. Waterland.

As the Editor has printed but a few Copies, no more than enow, as well as he could calculate, just to pay for the Paper, Printing and Engraving, and has considerably enlarged the History above-mentioned since his publishing Proposals, &c. what Copies are printed can't be afforded at a lower Price than is there mentioned. What he has done, he hopes the Subscribers will accept of as a well-meant Offering to the Memories of those good and excellent Men to whose faithful and unwearied Labours and Christian Resolution England is so much obliged for that Divine Light and Knowledge of the Holy Scriptures which it now enjoys, and which the Editor kopes we shall always know how to value and esteem notwithstanding the many Arts and Inventions of the present Insidel Factors to render them ridiculous and contemptible.

N. B. The few Copies that remain unfubscribed for may be had, at a Guinea a Book in Sheets, at Mr. Page's and Mount's, Stationers on Great Tower-Hill, or at Mr. Parker's at the King's-Head in St. Paul's Church-Yard.

ENGLISH Translations of the BIBLE, &c.

CHAP. I.

Of the Translating several Parts of and the Whole BIBLE into British, English-Saxon, and the English spoken after the Conquest.

S the miraculous descent of the Holy Ghost (a) on the Apostles was for this purpose, that every Man there present might hear them speak in the Tongue where in he was born, the wonderful Works of GOD, so we find, that after these wonderful Works were written, (b) that so Men might know the Certainty of them, and believe, that Jesus (c) is the Christ the Son of GOD, and that believing they might have Life through his Name, these Writings or Declarations were not confined to the Language in which they were at first written, but were translated into the several Tongues of every Nation under Heaven to which the Apostles came. This is expressly assimpted by Eustlian, that (d) both Greeks and Barbarians had the Writings concerning Jesus in their own Country Charasters and Language. Or, that the New Testament, however, was every where in the Vulgar or Mother Tongue of the Country or People for whose Use and Instruction it was originally designed. The same is acknowledged by the more learned of the Romanists, 'That (e) it would not be distinuit to prove, that long 'before their Novelties, who at this Day are called Protestants, there were Translations of the Scripture in the Mother Tongue among almost all the Nations or People of the Christian Name: Which has been very particularly shewn by F. Le Long in his Sacred Bibliotheque (f). In an extraordinary Consistory held at Rome, A. D. 679, (g) about British Affairs, it was among other things ordained. That Lessons out of the Divine Oracles should be always read for the Edification of the Churches, that the Minds of the Hearers might be fed with the Divine Word, even at the very time of their Bodily Repail. And indeed the first Synodical Prohibition or Restraint of this Liberty or Birth-right of Christians in the Use of the Holy Scripture in their own Language, we find was in a Synod held at Thelease, A. D. 1228, on occasion of the Doctrine and Preaching of the Waldenses, That the Holy Scripture is the Rule of Christian Fasth; and that the Reading and Knowledge of it is free and necessary to all Man, to the People as well as to the Clergy. In opposition to this Principle the Synod then decreed, in the following Terms: (b) We forbid, that Laymen be permitted to have the Books of the Old and New Testament; unless perhaps some one out of Doctrin desires to have the Platter or Breviary for Divine Offices, and the Hours of the Blessed Virgin; has even these they may not have translated in the Vulgar Tongue.

When therefore (i) St. Paid the great Apostle of the Gentiles, who most probably was the Apostle of the Britains, had by his Preaching converted the ancient Inhabitants of this Island of Great Britain to the Christian B

Faith, it can't be supposed but that He, or however his Successors in that Ministry, took care they should have in their own Language the things which he or they had preached to them concerning Jose, they at this time no Copies of any such Writing are any where remaining. After so entire a Conquest as was made of those People by the savage and barbarous Saxons, one need not wonder at the Destruction of what Records or Memorials they had, whether religious or civil.

However, after the Sexon Inhabitants of this Country were converted to Christianity, we are fure they had the whole Bible in their own Country Characters and Language, and that the four Gotpels in the fame Language were read in their Religious Assemblies. A Copy of these was by the Assistance and Encouragement of our learned Primate Matthew Farker printed by that learned and indefatigable Confessor and Martyrologist John Fax, from a MS. now in the * Basseian Library, N. E. F. 3. 15. With the following Title, The Gospals of the sewer Evangelistes (a) translated in the olde Saxons tyme est of Latin into the vulgare tours of the Saxons, and now pulsished for testimenic of the same. At London by John Daye dwelling over Adersgate. 1571. Can Privillegio Regim Majestatis per decennium.

In a Dedication to the Queen it's observed, That "by Archbishop Farker's industrious diligence and learned labours this booke with others more had bene collected and searched out of the Saxon monuments.' And the Archbishop himself gave the following account of it; (b) Edidit etiam quatuor Evangelia Saxonico idiomate: at squares scripturus antes suife vulgari sommes Anglicano socials. This was the Method that learned Prelate took to confiste the Papists impudent Boast of Antiquity, and their as shameless Fastion of the Novelty of the Faith and Worship of the Protestants: Out of their own Mouths he condemned those wicked Servants.

Thus about this time the (c) Archbishop published, in Saxon and the present English, a Sermon on Easter Day of the Paschal Lambe, and part of a Letter of Estrike Abbot of St. Allons, written by him to Waltime Byshop of Syrburne, A. D. 950. These his Grace called 'A Testimonic of Antiquitie, shring the suncient Easts' in the Charles of ENGLAND, touching the Sacrament of the lody and bloude of the Lord here publishly preached, and also received in the SAXONS tyme above 600 Tears ago.' In a Presace presix'd to them it's said, that it was owing to the Archbishop's diligent Search for such Writings of Historic and other Monuments of Antiquitie, that these Pieces were brought to light. And because these Trasts are so plain and express against the bodily Presence, which the Papists pretend was never opposed before Energanist's time, about 1050, and that they of the Roman Church are apt to complain of Missepresentation, therefore at the end of these Trasts the Archbishop added a Certificate signed by himself, the Archbishop of Tork and thirteen other Bishops, attesting, That "this Saxon Homily with the other testimonics did fully agree to the olde auncient bookes from whence they were taken, and were truly put forth in print without any adding or withdrawing from the same." But to return to the Saxon Gospels.

Mr. Fax in his aforefaid Dedication to the Queen tells her Majesty, That our Countryman Bede did translate the whole Bible in the Saxon tounge: that he translated against the gospell of St. John in the Englishe tounge a little before his departure; that K. Alfrede translated both the olde and the newe Testament into his own native language: and that, if Histories be well examined, we shall finde both before the Conquest and after, as well before John Wicklisse was borne as since, the whole body of Scriptures by sondry men translated into thus our countrey tounge; infomuch, that Thomas Arandell then Archbyshop of Torke and Chauncellour of England, at the Funeral Sermen of Queene Arme, who dyed 1394, as Pendore seith, did abouth, that she had the Gospells in the vulgare tounge with divers expositors upon the same, which she sent unto

" Hym to be viewed and examined (d)."

(f) See W, Lift's Edition of this Treatife, 1623.

In this Edition the Saxon is printed in large Letters in an inner Column, taking up about two thirds or more of the Page; and in the outer Column, opposite to the other, is Erglish as now spoken, or what is called the Bishop's Translation, published by Archbishop Parker, A. D. 1568. This Saxon Translation was made from the Latin Valgar, and is a fort of verbal rendring it. Another Edition of this Version was published by the learned Dr. Thomas Marshal, 1665, who tells us, he neither could find any thing of the Author of this Translation, nor settle the (*) Age of it; which no body need wonder at, since from the Variations of the Stile he was led to believe it was not the Work of one Hand, and that the Gospel of St. Mattlew alone had two different Interpreters or Translators.

In his Observations on the Anglo-Saxonic Version of the Gospels, the Dollor remarks, that to any one who reads the Trasts, written in Saxon by Abbat Alfric, (f) of the Old and New Testament, it must be very obvious to note what Books of the Old Testament he translated into Anglo-Saxonic, the vulgar Language of his Time. Since in those Treatises they are thus named, viz. Genesa, Exadus, Leviticus, Numbers, Deutoromy, Joshua, Judges, Ruth, sour Books of Samuel, entitled in Latin Liber Region, a sisth Book called Varia dierum, or Chronicks, the Pfalter, three Books of Samuel, entitled in Latin Liber Region, a sisth Book called Varia dierum, or Chronicks, the Pfalter, three Books of Samuel, entitled in Latin Liber Region, a sisth Book called Varia dierum, or Chronicks, the Pfalter, three Books of Samuel, entitled in Latin Liber Region, a sisth Book called Varia dierum, or Chronicks, the Pfalter, three Books of Samuel, entitled in Latin Liber Region, a sisth Book called Varia dierum, or Chronicks, the Pfalter, three Books of Samuel, entitled in Latin Liber Region, a sisth Book called Varia dierum, or Chronicks, the Pfalter, three Books of Samuel, entitled in Latin Liber Region, a sisth Book called Varia dierum, or Chronicks, the Pfalter, three Books of Samuel, entitled in Latin Liber Region, a sisth Book called Varia dierum, or Chronicks, the Pfalter, three Books of Samuel, entitled in Latin Liber Region, a sisth Book called Varia dierum, or Chronicks, the Pfalter, Pfalter, Tudges, three Books of Samuel, entitled in Latin Liber Region, a sisth Book called Varia dierum, or Chronicks, the Pfalter, Pfalter, Pfalter, Tudges, three Books of Samuel, entitled in Latin Liber Region, a sisth Book called Varia dierum, or Chronicks, the Pfalter, Pfalter, Tudges, three Books of Samuel, entitled in Latin Liber Region, a sisth Book called Varia dierum, or Chronicks, the Pfalter, Pfalter, Tudges, three Books of Samuel, entitled in Latin Liber Region, a sisth Book called Varia dierum, or Chronicks, the Pfalter, Pfalter, Tudges, thr to be doubted that the Books of the New Testament were before turn'd into Saxon, and commonly read in that Language. Some Fragments of this Translation of the Old Testament, viz. Part of the Original, and of the Book of Job, were printed, by the Encouragement of that learned Reviver of the Study of the Gube and Anglo-Saxone Tongues, Dr. George Hicker, at Oxford, with the Janian Types by Mr. Edward Thundt, A. D. 1608, to which is added the Apochryphal Piece, called, The Gosse of Nicodemus in Anglo-Saxone, and a Fragment of the History of Judith in Dano-Saxone. As to the Flatter, the above mentioned Dr. The Marshal observed, it had a great many Saxon Translators, as appears by the various Readings of four MSS, which are exhibited by Mr. John Stehman in the Margin of his interlineated Platter, which he published A. D. 1640. And another MS. Copy in the possession of the learned Francia Janias, which differes with all the others, and appears to have been written some time after the death of King Affred, fince in the Kalendar prefixed to it at the vii Calend. Normal it is thus noted: Alipped per obset

On this occasion our Antiquary William L'Iste, Esq. of Williams, who published in Angle-Caronic and English the above-mentioned Treatises of the Abbat Alfric's, observed, that 'had that good ordinance, first enabled by God, Dess. x. 5. for the preservation of the Book of his Law, by keeping a Copy of it in the Ark, been continued, and Standard Bibles been preserved in our Cathedral Churches, as it has been since appointed by King Alfred, we might now have shewed the whole Book of GOD, or the entire Old and New Testament in Saxon, which was the English of those Times, translated both by that King and the Archbishop of Canterbury. Elfric (a). In the Translation of the New Testament, especially of the three first Gospels, Dr. Marshal has observed, there are some things which differ from the Latin Version now in use, and which feem to be taken from one more ancient, viz. the very ancient Greek and Latin MS. Copy of the New Testament which the learned Theodore Beza gave to the Univertity of Contridge. Among other instances of this, he mentions the interpolation in Adatt. xx. betwixt the 28th and 29th Verfes, which is in the Cambridge, Bennet, and Hausn MSS. tho' omitted in the printed Copy. Lie pyland toge conne on gehproum lange, or. This affirment or addition Dr. Marshal fays he never could (b) find any where but in this Anglo-Saxonic Translation, and that very ancient Greek and Latin MS. Copy of Beza's. As in Luke zvii. 7. fome Latin Copies have after patientem, over, and others lover; this Translation follows the former, o'Se reep hergenone, but Widif's Translation is, erroge or lefterage over. By what we have of this Translation, it appears it was a verbal Translation of this old Latin Copy, without always thewing regard to the idiotitm or propriety of the English. Thus Matt. i. 23. To blice yeo pamne hæp's on mno so .- Vere illa virgo batchit in evetre .- And John il. 4. la pip. hpart ifme 7 pe ; Weman, what is me and thee? Tho' indeed Mar. viii. 29, this idiom of the Latin feems rendred more agreeable to that of the English --- howe type Jur gamaine? What is betweet thee and m? I add, that the Makers of this Translation feem to have had no notion of what the Papids are fo fond, that in the ancient Latin Edition are certain words called Sacred, as Baptifus, Penance, Synagogia, Strike, &cc. fince we find them all translated into English, as Baytism is rendred pullulat, Penance brobbote, Smagogue Keramnungum, Scribe bocepe, &c. So. Amen is translated to Shee. F. Simon observes, that the best Translators of the New Testament have kept in the word Philaderies; but here we fee it translated healybec, or Neck-books.

This Angle-Saxonic Translation is, we see, divided into Sections, over each of which is placed a Rubric, directing when it should be read. For instance, Mast. i. 18. Dyr googpel gobyna's on myo-purpay marge area. This Gospel is to be read on Asid-minter's Mass Even. Which is, I think, a good Proof, that at this time the holy Scriptures were read in the publick Service of the Church in a Language which the People understood. When this Translation was made, is very uncertain; it seems as if it was some time in the 6th or 7th Contury, since Beste died A. D. 734-

As all Languages are in a flowing Condition, and never continue long in one State; so it was not a great while before by a change of the Civil Government here in England, which did all it could to abolish the native Language of the Inhabitants, and introduce the Freeb, the Saxon Language was so altered, that the Inhabitants could understand very little or nothing of what had been their Mother-tongue, or however that of their English Ancestors. By this means the Translation of the holy Scriptures into the Anglo-Saxonic Tongue was of little or no use to the Subjects of England soon after the Conquest, or however to those of the vulgar fort.

The Bible being thus in a Tongue unknown to the common People, fince it was now in Latin only, and not very common even in that Language, and the Saxwic being grown obfolete and out of use, an opinion, it seems, prevailed, that the knowledge of the Scriptures was unnecessary, nay, that it was not lawful for private Christians to read them in the Tongue wherein they were born. Nay, to that extravagance was this whim at length carried, that one William Butler, a Franciscan Frier, maintained, that 'the Prelates ought not to admit of this, that every one should at his pleasure read the Scriptures translated into Latin.' A paradox which served indeed to justify or excuse many of even the Priests of those times, who, as they knew nothing of the Scriptures but what they found of them in their Paranises and Missais, so they were not able to read those Portions of them there with understanding, so utterly ignorant were they even of Latin.

However, it pleased GOD in the times of this ignorance to raise up some of a better Spirit, and who had a greater regard for the dignity of the human Nature, as well as for the holy Scriptures. In France, John Beleib, an eminent Paris Divine, observed, that (c) in the primitive Church it was forbidden to any one to speak in an uneminent Paris Divine, unless there was some one to interpret: since it was agreeable to common sense, that it was a known Tongue, unless there was some one to interpret: since it was agreeable to common sense, that it was a thing persettly useless for a Man to speak and not be understood. Hence, he said, grew that laudable custom in some Churches, that after the Gospel was pronounced according to the Letter, or read in Latin, immediately it was explained to the People in the vulgar (d) Tongue. But, adds he, which consists what is said above, what shall we say of our times, when there's scarce any one to be found who understands what he reads or hears.

Of this Translation, which was mostly had and used in private Fan us, there were above thirty Editions in Folio, Quarto, and Octavo, printed mostly by the Queen's and King's Printers, with from the Year 1560 to the Year 1616, when it was printed in a timali boso. Editions of it were likewise printed at Geneva, Edinburgh, and Amsterdam.

The Papifts finding by the Bible's being printed to oft in English, that it was impossible to keep it out of the common People's Hands, were now reloved to have an English Translation of their own making. Accordingly in the Year 1982 was printed at Rienzi the New Testament in 4to, in what they called English.

Imprinted at I maden by Febert Barker, Printer to the King's most excellent Majestie.

Anno Dom. 1613

This Title is within a large Border cut in Wood, wherein is represented on the Top Jeborah in Hebrer Letters within a Glory. On the right Hand is the Sun, and on the left the Moon and Stars. Underneath is the Holy I amb, and a little below the Dove. On the right Side of these lits St. Matthew and on the left St. Mark, writing, with their proper Emblems, an Angel and a Lion, behind them. Towards the bottom is a Lamb with his Legs ried and bleeding, land on his Back on an Astar, and below, the other two Evangelists, St. I wer, and St. Juan, with an Eagle behind him. On the right Hand towards the Outside are the Symbols of the xii I tibes, and on the left the P stares of the xii Apostics. In the Margin are placed the Idiotisms of the Heaven and Good, and the divers Readings.

The Whole was corrected and amended by Mr. Veal and Mo	. Samuel Clark,

The last of these, Mr. Clark, had been ejected from the Rectiony of Grendon in Bucks by the Burtlelonico Att, 1662. In 1690, being then Minister of a Difference Congregation of the Presbyterian Perfection at Epper-Wilconb in Bucks, he published a very nietal Edition of this Bicle in one Volume in Polio, of which I shall give an Account prejently.

Two Years after, 1680, was this Translation of the Bible again printed at Oxford, with the Add tion of Archbithop Other's Chronology.

In 1600 was printed, as is above-faid, Mr. Samuel Clark's Edition of this Bible, with the following Title:

The H y Bible, containing the O I Teplament and the New, with Annotations and Para et Surpriores.

To which is americal, The Harmony of the Goopen as and the Reduction of the Jewith Heights, Coins and Afra-fines, to our English Standards.

And a Table of the Promies in Scripture.

By Samuel Clark.

In a Preface prefixed to it, the Editor gives an Account of the Measures he had taken in this Edition, and how he had governed himself in the Performance, or writing the Annotations. Two Things, he said, he a med at throughout, with Palmels and Briefenels, because he intended it for the Use of the painter fort of Chris frans, and confulted there is the Reader's Purie and Pains.

He commonly, he find, acquiefeed in our Translation, yet sometimes he made use of the marginal Reading, and in one Place changed the Word of supply, vis. 1 Cor. 1 26. He generally to contrived the Notes as to no and comply with the Words of the Lext, so that the Words of the Text must be taken in to make up the Sense compleat: and here and there sprinkled some Observations, especially in Historical Places, which may alford Matter of Medication to the pious Reader. He took a great deal of pains in collecting parallel beriptores, and that not only for Words and Phrases, but for Sense and Matter. For this purpose, besides Places which he added from his own Observation, he examined all those which are in Carca and S. Greak Testament, which are also printed in the Oxford Edition with the various Readings, but with many Livida. He likewise examined those in Came's Bible.

To accomplish all this, he had, he faid, made it his Business for many Years (and indeed in a manner ever fince he was reduced to a State of Silence as to the Publick Exercise of his Ministry) to peruie the choicest Authors, both expository and practices, which might contribute to such a Work; among which was Mr Poole's English Annotations, whose Expositions he found to be generally to folial and judicious, that he had schoon found reason to differt and depart from them,

After this Preface are added Directions to the lefs intelligent for their more easy understanding the Next he of ferves the Difficulty of fuch an Undertaking, and his own lot officiency for it. Then he excuses his attempting it, on Account of many of it Divines become in well in it, as to get the Publick Applicate and Approbation of Universities and learned Men, and I must not be a trust to a competent Knowledge of the oriental Languages, and naking this his chief Strate the many Years park, and too this, on the one hand, his Country on had great need of beth a Trustation, and that, on the other land, no Fault or Imperfect on a many verger from hit on of the Strate e, ought in Re Vin to plan her the Lath or Manners of Men of Sente, because the Latin Men, it, the Universal Front on of the Cartestek Church, and the Authority of the Imme, are the Standard of our Faith, and not any Vulgar Translation of the Scripture, which is

but of private Authority

To flew the great need there is of this Translation, the Anthor obleves, that we have no Calmet (by which he means Roman Catholich) Translation of the hereptores in the English Longue but the Don't Bible and the Rosmach Leitument, which have been done now more than an himited Years lince, the Language whereof is so old, the Words in many Places to obsolete, the Orthography so bad, and the Landston to very literal, that in a Number of Places it is mintell gible, and all over to grating to the Ears of such as are accossed to speak, in a manner, another Language, that most People will not be at the Pains of reading them. Besides, he find, they are to (c) balks, that they cannot be conveniently carried about for publick Devotion, and so scarce and dear, that the Generality of the People neither have, nor can produce them for their pre-

To supply all these Desects, Nary Said, he had end roused to make this New Testament speak the Fritzh Tongue new used, as near as the many (1) Herra is wherewish it abounds, and which, in his Opinion, he told, ought never to be altered where they can he red to the large pibe, would allow. For this see ion he took all the Care imaginable to keep is close to the large as the Irgush would permit, and where the I ams Phrase would prove un neelligible in the France and the associated in two or more mast be added to make the Sense clear, there he took this Precaution. It the Word or Words to be added were eviden by implied, the pot expressed in the Latin according to the grammined Conference, he put the same in the Text in thank Characters. The New Teffament of our server Je us Chr ft accesso, to the ancient 1 at n Friton, with critical Remarks upon the littral Ascaning in difficult Places.

From the French of F. Simon.

The Author of this I am I ranther on teles -, in his (i) Preface, that I is may be find for the commendation of it, that having had many also stags from the labour and indistiny o these who had formerly undertaken this work, he had studed to make this more accurate than those which were made buore tho' he ingeniously ownest, that it was not yet arrived at that degree of perfection in which locubrations of this nature should be. That is proposed to himself the impation of Origen, since to the edition he had added the various readings token from the Original Text, and the Oriental Vertions. That he had attempted to translate the Laur (c) Verfi in fet torth by the commontment of Saxwe V. and Clement VIII. That it would he delets to enquire whether in tome places the Grek context was to be preferred to the Latin ed tion, and therefore he did not think, that the Helsen and treek Text thou d be removed from or fet afric in a French * Translation . On the contrary, it becmed to 1 m more predent to place the var at one and differences of them both in the ma gin, than to travilate the fel ofe i cred code from them. But, he faid, because he never * receded from the Latin Val a.r., he d I not therefore prefet that to the Greek context. Only fince he intended to publish the New Tell ment in the breech durett, he was obliged to fellow, or express the sense of, that ed tion which the faces Courch had a ways used for to many ages path."

At this Vertion, it leams, some Offence was taken by Card na! de Noanter and the B shop of Bleaux, who diffiked it, as having fome Things in it worthy of reprehention, and therefore torbad the Ufe of it in their Dioceses. On which the learned Translator detended himself in a (1) Remonstrance against the Cardinal The Authors of the Afts of the Learned, published at Light 1-04, give the to owing Character of this Franklistion, that " it is not perfunctority written, but made with Ingular Care according to the most correct Copy of the Vulgate Edition That sometimes also, where the Taribitor might, he has departed from that Bdittoo and tollowed the Greek: That fometimes he more coperally, or at teath cartioutiv, tenders thole Paffages which are fearce intelligible in the Vulgate, and yet very often with defign retains its Faults. That to every Book are prefixed by I Simon Prefaces, which are not vulgar or ordinary, but full of profound Learning That above ail, the Observations which the Author has put under every Page, deferve to be 1 read, fince in them he with great industry compares the most ancient MSS, and old Translations, and adds the various Readings of the Fathers; to that this Book may be inflead of a little Book of Criticks of the New Testament.

As to this Fuglish Translation, the Author of it affines Mr Fireb, that " it is as literal as possible, Fidelity, " not Elegancy, being the thing intended and required in this case."

A Particular Account of the several (a) MSS. of the Bible and New Testament made use of in this Edition of the New Testament, &c.

Bishop Afore's Boble in Folio. The Book is now a Part of the Royal Intrary at Cambridge, being the Royal and Mun heent Present of his late Mareity King Coope I to thit famous University. This Ms. is finely written, and of the common Version called Wind's both O'd and New Testament It has a large Margin, and is to set of marginal G oiles than many other Copies of the lame Translation. Betwitt the Oil and New Testament is interted the Probject, which was printed as Wichy's in 1550. In other Copies (part cularly in one of Bennes College) is this Prologue placed at the Head or Beginning of the hible, and might have been so placed here. There is no certain Judgment to be made of the Time when this Ms. was written, only it appears by the Hand and other Marks not to be of the earlieft Date.

2. Emarket College Copy in Folio. This MS, is of the tame Translation with that of Bishop More's, and is also beautifully written. It wants the Prologue, but at the Penning it has a large Table of the Lessons, Epistics and Gospels throughout the Year in which it is observable, that the Lessons of the Old Testament are not according to the Version of the Bisho to law up, but according to some other Version; as appears by tome initial and concluding Words of these Lessons and agreeing with this Version of the Bisho, but with the Version of these Lessons at the India a Ms. New Testament in Sistery Courage, of which an Account will be given prefently. No certain Judgment can be made of the Date of this MS, but it appears to be an older Copy than that of Bishop More's. At the but of the Morshy c are written, in Red link and in the same old Hand with the rest of the Copy, these two Lines:

Here endith the Bible. Their beige as, for we ben febel.

3. Trimity College New Testament in a small Felio. This is a fair Copy but imperfest, wanting about five Chapters of St. Astathers, and as much o the Apostope. It is of the same Version with the Bibles before-mentioned, and by the Hand and other Marks appears to be a more modern Copy.

4. Cana College New Testament in Quarto. This is of the same (!) Age with the Francial Copy, 8vo. and has the same Note or Date in the Calendar under Ferniar), and is in all Respects the time, with only this Difference, that the Calendar and Takes in this Mis. are not placed at the Head of the Book, but at the

End of the Gotp les

5. Pepri's New Test ment in his I brary in Aft dilen College, in a thick and large Quarto. This MS is written in a large and for Hand, and has been executive preserved. It was formers the Book of Sir (.) Will. Helpin, the last I and Prior of (a) St. Fin's of the name in Figured, but carries no Date with it. After the Epistle to the College is tollows the apoche, phal one to I induced, and at the End is a very complete and methodical Transfer pt of the Letious and Fisher of the ode Lane that len red in the course a tir the oft of Subburn to which are toursened her Letious more with are not of that the. The I floor are of the common Version of High 's B bie, tome tew only excepted which are of another Version. At the End of all is a large and accounte Table of Letions, Epistes and Cospels, of 28 Pages of the largest Size, close written, tho' in none of the simal of Letion.

6. Imanual New Testament in a large Svo. This MS begins with the motations of epsilit and gospels that ben rad he as the place, and at the End of it is a Col motar of the his own of the olde Lawe that her rad in the Charles, after which follows this R beie, experient Influence I steris Testament and Apochrypha, are not as in other Tables of the Lessons, which are taken out of the Old Testament and Apochrypha, are not as in other Tables of the common Version eshed Wides, as appears from the initial and concluding Words, but of another, the same that is been in the Salney Min before-ment oned. Next for two another Table of an the Books of the New Testament. Then increeds a Coundar, in which under February are written in the same old Hand with the rest of the MS these Words, Times written in the size of the Lord M. CCC1 XXXXVII. The Epsilies and Gospets for Saints-Days are placed in the Coundar over-against the Names of the Saints respectively. For instance, against July 26.

7. Transv College New Testament in 840. This Copy begins with a Calendar. At the End of 1618, 1. A Table of Matters or Contents of the Books and Chapters of the New Testament. 11 A Calendar and Rule for the Epst es and Golpels on Sants-Days. 11. A Table of Lessons, Epstles and Gospels for Sundaies and Iteres. 14. The Lessons taken out of the old Lawe for Sundaies and Iteres throughout the Year, which are of another Version both at large and in the initial and final Words in the Table which seems to prove, that this Copy, which bears no Date, is later than 1392, the Date of two former Copies.

9 This Codege New Testament in 800. This Copy is not ancient, but valuable for its being very correct, and centuring more than common Copies. It begins with a very large and particular Time of Musters of the New Testament, which tills 40 Pages. In it follows a Take of Ie itus, I fins and Green, which times up about 26 Pages. After (aghars tollows a Proleg on the pile to Landstonia, with the fip she is tell, but of a different Trans it on from that in Prosess New Yestament. This shows, that this Copy is modern in Companion with the offices, the Propagae it icit observing, that this fip she was but size to it original takes. At the find of the New Yestament accounts to the Use of Sandwy throughout the Year, with some (a) sew other Lessons, not in that Use, here we there interted in their proper Places, but scored with red Lines for distinction sake.

9 The (a) New Testament in a thick large San of my own. At the Beginning there flems to be four leaves cut out, so that it begins with the e Words written will red link, as if e other links and Rubrics are,

In the Margins are the Letters a, b, c, &c. to dinore the Beginning of the Gospels and Epist'es read in the Communion-Service. In the Margins of St. Mar. XX ii and St. L. ii XX are numeral Figures set to number the Worst their repeated. Some of these are very different from the Figures in the among us now, and therefore I have the given a Copy of them, together with the Mrain ones from whence they are showed to be copied, and those written with a Pen on the Fosios of a printed Edition of (1) Lastiantine his Works 1471

CI CE. I

OUL the ferusint of icfus crit cleptd an apostle, departed into the gospel of god which he hadde behote totore bi his profess in hoois feriptures of his fone, which is mad to him of the feed of doubt be the flesch, and he was bifore ordeyned the fone of god in vertu he the fpyryr of halowyng of the aghenrifying of deede men of icius enth oure lord, be whom we han reflequed grace and the office of apostil to obeie to the seith in alle folkis for his name, among whiche ghe ben also elepid of thefus crist : to alle that ben at rome derlyngis of god and clepid hooli. grace to ghou and pees of god oure fadir and of the lord thefus craft. first I do t that a truly got bi iclus crift for alle ghou ter genus to the to televil in differented I'r . It is a withe terms to when I for come by the to the golpel of his some that we with consta-I take to the col pleasement in greet and in feche it in ay that r f in ty is I had a see a wife in the wille of god to come to ghou for I defyre to fe ghou to parten fumwhat of spyritual grace that glade on profeth tate constitutes in ghou bi feith that is bothe ghouse and myn rogidre, and britheren I nyle that ghe unknowe that ofte I purposide to come to ghou and I am lett to this tyme that I have fum fruyt in ghou as in othere tolkis to greekis and to barbaryns to wife men and to unwife men I am dertour, fo that that is in me is redy to preche the goipel also to ghou that ben at rome, for I schame not the golpel for it is the vertu of god into beelthe to ech man that bileuer? to the iew first and to the greek. for the rightw !nelle of god is thewed in it of feith into feith, as it is writin for a just man lyueth of feith. for the wraththe of god is schewid fro heuene on al unpitee & wickidnetle of tho men that withholden the treuthe of god in unrightwy/netle. for that the of god that is known is subswidte bem, for 5 J harh khewid to hem, for the unvyfible things of him that ben undiritondun ben biholden of the crearec t writted the section is to and the cutrlailinge vertue it im and the godheed, to that thei moun not be excuted. for whome their hadden knewen god, thei glorifieden him not as god neither die en thankynges but thei vanyilchiden in her thoughts, and the unwife herte of hem was clerkid. for thei felynge that hemailf weren wife the weren mand fools & thei chaungiden the glorie of god uncorruptible into the likneile of an ymage of a deedli man and of bridges and of four footil breths and of ferpentis. for which thing god basok hem into the delives of her herre into unclennesse that thei punnysche with wrongis her bodies in hemalf, the whiche chaungiden the treathe of god into leetyng, and heneden and fernyden to a creature rather than to the creator that is bleflid into worldis of worldis, amen, theribre god betook hem into palliouns of schenichipe, for the wommen of hem channgiden the kyndeli us into that uts that is aghens kynde, also the men forlooken the kyndeli uß of womman, and brennyden in her dely res togidre, and men into men wroughten filthehede, and relievuyden into hemilif the mede that bibolte of her errour, and as thei precyclen that thei hadden not god in knowyng, god bitook hem into a reprenable witt, that thei do tho things that ben not couemable, that thei be fulfilled with al wickednette, malice, fornyeactoun, couety fe + weiwardnette, ful of envye, mantleyngis, firyt, gile, yuel wille, priny bachiteris, detractionris, hatetia to touris, proude and highe oner meture, in the it yuele thingis, not obery nge to fadir and manne, unwife, unmanerli, withouten love, withouten boond of pros, with extensucces the whole whomse tell had consucces on with a treat a mendal and, that there is not a to a wall in worthing z derhabten transfer out the but atother deal contento has deares.

CHAP. II.

Herfore thou art unexcufable ech man that demest. for in what thing thou demest another man thou condempnest this filt, for thou doist the formatting and by it is demail. So we writing that the doom of god is after treathe aghens hem that does fiche thingis, but geflift thou man that demest hom that does siche thingis, and thou doif the thingis, that then schalt alcape the doom of god? wher thou dispitiff the richells of his goodneffe, and the pacience and the long abidying, knowof thou not that the benyngaste of god ledith thee to forthinking, but affir thin hardnesse and unrepentaunt herte thou treforist to thee wraththe in the dai of wraththe and of schewing of the rightful doom of god, that fihal ghelde to ech man after hile werkis: fotheli to hem that ben bi pacience of good werk, glorie and honour and uncorapciona to bem that feken enerlaftynge lyf. but to bem that ben of fleyf and that affenten not to treuthe but bileuen to wickidnetle, wraththe and yndingnacioun, tribulacious and angwisch into ech foule of man that worchith yuel, to the iew first and to the greek, but glorie and honour and pees to ech man that workhith good thing to the lew first and to the greek, for acceptiona of perfones is not anentis god. for who cuere han fynned withouten the lawe schulen perifiche withouten the lawe, and who cuere han fynned in the lawe thei fehulen be demed bi the lawe, for the heereris of lawe ben not suft anentrs god, but the doors of the lawe schulen be maad suffe. for whanne hethene men that han not lawe doen kyndeli the things that ben of the lawe, thei not hauynge fuch maner lawe ben lawe to hemilif that schewen the week of the lawe writin in her herris. for the confeience of hem gheldith to hem a witnessyng bitwix hemlift of thoughtis that ben acculyinge or defendinge in the dai whanne god fehal deme the I is thing's of pon diray; by the toles of but if thou art named a lew and reflitt in the lawe and haft glorie in god, & haft knowe his wille, and thou lerned bi the lawe preuest the more probtable thingis, and triffift the fill to be a ledere of blynde men, the light of hem that be in derkneths, a techere of unwifemen, a maittir of ghonge children that halt the fourme of kunnyng and of treathe in the lawe. what thanne techift thou another and techift not this filt? thou that prechift that me fehal not fiele, fielift, thou that technit that me ichal not do lecherie, doift lecherie. thou that whatist mawmetts, doift laenlegie, thou that hall glorie in the lawe, unwor-Schiput god bi brekyng of the lawe, for the name of god is blasfemed bi ghou among bethen men as it is writen. for circumcilious promuth if thou kepe the lawe, but if thou he a trespallour aghen the lawe, the circumcifioun is maid prepucie, therefore if prepucie kepe the rightwyfactic of the lawe, wher his prepucie schal not be arettid into circumethoun? and the prepuete of kynde that fulfillith the lawe feld a be thee char bill or a corner art trespassor aghen the lawe, for a rid a common the tains, with rities care author a openli in the fleifeh, but he that is a new in hid. the circum term is rety affected at little letters whose preifying is not of men but of god,

" Herfore what schulen we feie? schulen we I dwelle in fynne that grace be plentenous? god forbede. for hou febulen we that ben deede to fynne lyne ghit therynne? whethir britheren ghe knowen nor, that whiche cuere we ben baptifid in . crist refu we ben baptind in his deeth. for we ben tog dre byried with him bi -ym into deeth, for as crift roos tro deeth bi the glone of the fadir, fo walke we in a newenefle of lyf. for if we plaunted togidre ben mand to the lyknetle of his deeth, alto the mission be of the I'm It of the offeren when witynge this thing, that oure colde man is crucified togidre that the body of fynne be diffried that we terue no more to fyune, for he that is deed is justined fro fynne, and it we ben deede with crist we bileuen that also we schulen lyne togidre with him. witings for crist rilynge aghen fro deeth now dieth the state of the territory on him. for that he was deed to fynne he was deed cont, but that he lyue he lyueth to god. fo g . . . if to be deede to fynne but lynynge i mi i i 2 4 1 1 1x2, 1 1 To 1 1 1 1 1 1 The state of the s Instrumental and the state of t lawe but undir grace, what therfore? schulen we do fynne for we ben not undir the lawe but undir grace? god forbede, witen ghe not that to whom ghe ghyuen p. possible sessential to the first the formula of that thing to which ghe han 14 obeied? either of lynne to deeth, either of obedience to rightwylnelle. but I thanke god, that ghe weren feruauntia of fynne, but ghe han & obeied of herte into that fournit of techyng in which ghe ben bitaken, and ghe delynered its lynne ben mand ferusuntis of rightwy fneile. I fore that thing that is of man for the un- . Stablenetic of ghoure steach, but as ghe han ghoung , houre membris to ferue to uncleancite and to wick idnelle into wickidnelle, fo now ghyve ghe ghoure membris to ferue to rightwy litelie into hoolynelie. for whanne ghe weren feruauntia of tyone ghe weren tree of +" rightfolnetle. therfore what frust hadden ghe thanne in the things in whiche ghe Ichanien now? for the ende of hem is deeth. but now ghe delyucred tro fynne and maad fernauntis to god han ghoure truyt into hoolingue and the ende enerlattynge lyf. for the wages of lynne deeth, the grace of god is entrially age ly l in crist telu oure lord.

CHAP. VII.

B Ritheren wher ghe knowen not, for I speke to men that knowen the lawe, for the lawe hath lordschipe in a man as long typic as it lyutth, for that womman that is under an husbonde is bounden to the lawe while the husbonde lyueth, but if his husbonde is deed sche is delyuered tro the lawe of the husbonde, therefore sche schal be clepid auoutresse if sche be with another man while the husbonde lyueth, but if his husbonde is deed sche is delyuered fro the lawe of the husbonde that sche be not auoutreffe if fehe be with another man, and to my britheren ghe ben mand deede to the lawe by the bods of crist that ghe ben of another, that roos aghen fro deeth that ghe bere fruyt to god, for whanne we weren in fleitch pathouns of 13 anes that weren bi the lawe wroughten in oure membris to bere fruyt to deeth. but now we ben unboundun tro the lawe of deeth in which we weren holden, to that we feruen in newencile of fpyryt and not in coldnelle of lettre, what therfore februen we fere, the lawe is fynne? god forbede. but I knew not fynne but bi lawe. for I write not that coucityng was lynne, but for the lawe feeds thou febalt not coucite, and thorugh occasious takes franc bi the maundement bath wrought in me al coucitie. for withouten the lawe fynne was deed and I lynyde withouten the lawe fumtyme. but whanne the comaundement was comen frame lymyde aghen, but I was deed and this commundement that was to lyf was foundum to me to be to deeth, for fynne thorugh occatioun taken bi the commundement diffeyayde me, and by that it flough me, thereore the lawe is book and the commundement is hooli and full and good. is thanne that thing that is good mand deeth to me? god forbede, but fynne that it feme fynne thorugh good thing wroughte deeth to me that me franciously manifests rugh the constant in an and we witen that the lawe is spiritual, but I am fleitchlifeld undir fynne. for I undirftonde not that that I worehe, for I do not the good thing that I wole, but I do thilk yuel thing that I hate, and if I do that thing that I wolt not, I confente to the lawe that it is good, but now I workhe not it now, but the fynne that dwellith in me. but and I wook that in me, that is in my fletich dwellith no good, for wille lifth to me but I fynde not to parfourme good thing. for I do not thilk good thing that I wole, but I do thilk yuel thing that I wole not. and if I do that youl thing that I wole not I worche not it, but the fynne that dwellith in me. theriore I fynde the lawe to me willynge to do good thing, 2. for yuel thing light to me, for I delyte togidre to the lawe of god altyr the yoner man, but I fee a nother lawe in my membris aghen fightynge the lawe of my foule, and makynge me carry in the lawe of fynne that is in my membris. I am an " un elt man, who fehal delyuer me fro the bodi of this frame? the grace of god bi felu crift oure lord, therfore I myfilf by the foule femie to the lawe of god, but be flesich to the lawe of fynne,

CHAP. VIII

"Herfore now no thing of dampnacious is to hem that ben in crid iclo, whiche wandren not after the fleifth. for the lawe of the spyryt of lyf in crift iclu hath delyuerid me Iro the lawe of fynne and of deeth. for that that was ymposible to the lawe in what thing it was fik bi fletch, god fente his fone into the likenetle of fleich of lynne, and of fynne dampnyde fynne in fleifch, that the justifiying of the lawe were fulfilled in us that goen not alter the fleelch but after the foyryt. for their that ben after the fletich faueren tho thingis that ben of the fleifch, but thei that ben altir the fpyryt feelen the things that ben of the ipyryt, for the prudence of fletich is deeth, but the prudence of ipyryt is lyl and pees, for the wildom of the fleifth is enemy to god for it is not fuget to the lawe

of god, for neither it mai, and thei that ben in detich moun not piefe to god. but ghe ben not in the h but in spyryt, if netheles the spyryt of god dwellath in ghou. but if one hath not the spyryt of crit, this is not his, for if crit is in ghou the bods to deed + fro fydos, but the fpyryt lyneth for tuilinging, and it the fpyryt of him that restide tein crist fro deeth dwellith in ghou, he that resfide iefa crist fro deeth fehal quykene allo ghoure deedly bodies for the fpyryr of him that dwellith in ghou, therfore britheren we ben dettouris not p. fch that we line aftir the fleisch. for if ghe lynen after the flerich ghe fehulen die, but it ghe bi the ipyryt fleen the dedu of the fleich ghe ichulen lyne, for who cuere ben led bi the fpyryt of god their ben the fones of god, for ghe han not take ettleone the fpyryt of feruage in drede, but ghe han take the ipyryt of adoptious of force in which we crien abba fadir. and thilk fpyryt gheldith witheiling to oure fpyryt that we ben the fones of god. if fones and cyris, and cyris of god, and cyris togidre with crift, it netheles we fuffren togidre that also we ben glorified togidre, and I deme, a. that the pathouns of this tyme ben not evene worth; to the glorie to comynge that fehal be schewid in us. for the abidying of creature abidith the fchewjug of the fonce of god, but the creature is fuget to vanyte not winge, but for him that made it fuget in hope. for talk creature lebal be deri-uered fro feruage of corupcious into liberte of the glorie of the fones of god. and we ff wite, that ech creature forowith and traueilith with peyne til ghit, and not could it, but also we usual that han the firthe fragets of the fparit, and we usfill forowen with time us for the adoperoun of goddis fones abidinge the aghen biyng of oure bodi. but bi hope we ben mand fast. for hope that is feien is not hope, for who hopith that thing that he feeth? and if we hopen that thing that we feen not, we abiden bi pacience, and also the spyryt helpith oure judyrmjite, for what we febulen prefe as it bihough we witten nor, but thilk fpyryt axith for us with forowyngis that moun not be toold out. for he that sekith the hertis woot what the spyryt defyreth, for bi god he suith for hooli men. and we o. witen, that to men that louen god alle thingis worch. en togulre into good to hem that after purpos ben clepid feyntis. for thilk that he knew bifore he bitore ordeynyde by grace to be maad lyk to the ymage of his fone, that he be the firste bigeten among manye britheren, and thilke that he bitore ordeynyde to bliffs hem he elepide, and whiche he elepide hem he suitshede, and whiche he inflafiede, and hein he glorifiede, what thanne khulen we lefe to thele things? 11 god for us who is aghens us? the which also sparide not his owne lone but for us alle bitook him, hou also ghat he not to us alle thing is with him? who khal accule aghens the cholen men of god? it is god that inftifieth, who is it that condemporth? it is lefus crift that was deed, ghe the which roos aghen, which is on the right half of god, and the which prefeth for us. who thanne fehal departe us fro the charge of crift? tribulactoon or angwisch, or hungir or nakidnesse or persecucious or peril or sweed? as it is written, for we ben flayn al dar for thee, we ben getlid as scheep of flaughtir. but in alle thefe things we ouercomen for hym that lourde us, but I am cerreyn that neithir deeth, neithir lyt, neithir sungelis, neither principatis, neither vertues, neithir prefent thingis, neithir thingis to comynge, neuther nothir firengthe, neither highthe, neither departe, nother moon other creature mai departe us fro the charte of god that is in icfu crit ours ford.

C H A P. 1X.

Sele treathe in criff issue I lie not, for my congooth, for greet heavnetle is to me and contynucl forowe to myn herte. for I myfilf definde to be departed fro crul for my britheren that ben my colyns after the flerich that ben men of ifrael, whose as a lopeious of fones and gloric and tellament and gruying of the lawe, and firmy fe and tiheeff's, who s ten the fadris and of whiche is enft after the fleifch that is god abone alle thingis blethed into worldis, arnen, but not that the word of god hath falle down, for not alle that ben of ifrael thefe be ifraelitia, neithir thei that ben feed of abraham alle ben tenes, but in isaac the feed schal be clepid to thee. that is to long por the that ben fones of the fleilch ben bucs at god, but their that ben fones of b heaft ben temed in the teed. Jer where this is the world of mheelt, after this tyme I tohal come and a fence Ichal be to lare, and not noult iche, but all rebeera bailed tweet fones of on beging t, of these oure failer and whante the ever test of it bernn, neither hadden doon ony thing of good cirbs et yuel, that the purpos of god schulde dwelle bi eleccioun, not of werkis but of god clepyng, it was feed to him, that the more schulde scrue the latte, what there is but a we feet when we kildnesse be anexts good? god forbede. for he feith to moiics, I fi hal have mercy on whom I have mercy, and I schal ghyue merci on whom I a haue mercy. therfore it is not neithir of man willynge neithir rennynge, but of god hauynge mercy, and the scripture seith to farao, for to this thing I have flyrand thee, that I schewe in thee my vertu, and that my name be teeld in al crthe, therfore of whom god wole he hath mercy, and whom he wole he endurith, thanne feift then to me, what is fought ghit, for who withftendith his will? oo man what art thou that answers? to god? wher a mand thing feith to him that made it, what half thou mand me for war a pottere effeley hath not power to make of the face generoes veiled into enour, a nothir into diggs ? that it god willings to schewe his wraththe and to make his power known hath futfrid in greet pacience vellels of wraththe *a able into deeth, to schewe the richellis of his glorie into vessels of merci whiche he made redi into glorie. whiche also he elepide not could of fewis, but also of bethen men as he feith in ofce, I fehal elepe not my pepie my pepie, and not my loued my loued, and no getynge merci getynge mercy, and it febal be in the place where it is feld to hem not ghe my peple, there their schulen be elepted the sones of god ly uyage, but itale crieth for ifracl, if the noumbre for the children of ifract fehal be as grauel of the fee, the relits schulen be mand sast, for sothe a word makynge an ende and abreggynge in equyte, for the ford tehal make a word | breggid on at the erthe. and as thate hitore feide, but god of oofts hadde lete to usiced, we hadden be madd as fodom, and we hadden be lyk as gomorre, therfore what schulen we fere? that bethen men that fueden not rightwylnelle han gete rightwylnelle, ghe the rightwyfnesse that is of feith, but issued suyinge the lawe of right-wysnesse, whi? for not of feith but as of werkis, and thei spurnyden aghers the shoon of offentious, as it is written, lo I putte assoon of essentious in son, and a stoon of slaundre, and each that schal biscue in it schal not be consounded.

CHAP, X

B Ruberen, the wile of man herte and my attache A yng is mead to god for hem into heelthe, but I bere withcityng to hem, that thet has love of god, but not after kunnyng, for thei unknowynge goddis rightwyfneile and lekynge to make ftidefaft her owne rightfulnefle, ben not fuget to the rightfulnefle of god, for the ende of the lawe is crift to rightwyincile to ech man that bileueth, for moiles wroot, for the man that schal do rightwy frictic that is of the lawe tehal lyue in it. but the rightwyfnette that is of bileue feith thus, seie thou not in thin herte, who schal stighe into henene, that is to fele to lede down crist? or who schal go down into belle, that is to aghen elepe enit fro deeth? but what feith the feripture? the word is nygh in thi mouth, and in thin herte, this is the word of bileue which we proches, that it thou knowledget in the month the lord icfu crift and bileuest in thin herre, that god reifide him fro deeth, thou fehalt be fast, for bi herre me bileueth to rightwyfnette, but bi mouth knysleching is med to leelthe. for whi for plane feith, ech that bileueth in him fehal not be confounded, and ther is no diffinctious of icw and of breck, for the same lord of alle is riche in alle that suwardli elepen him, for ech man who ever fehal anward is upe the name of the bid felial be fial. hou thanne Ichulen thei ynwardh clepe him into whom thei han not bileued? or hou schulen their bileue to him whom thei han not herd? hou fehulen thel heere withouten a prechour? and hou schulen thei preche but thei be sent? as it is writun, hou fayre ben the feet of hem that prechen pees, of hem that prechen goode things ?" but not alle men obeien to the gospel, for isase feith, lord, who bileuyde to oure hearyng? thertore feith is of heering, but heery og bi the word of crift but I feie, wher thei herden not? ghis fotheli, the word of hem wente out into al erthe, and her words into the endis of the world, but I fere, wher thrack knew not? first moises seith, I schal lede ghou to er are that ghe be no folk, that ghe be an unwife tak, I schal sende ghou into wraththe, and ifaie is books and feith, I am foundum of men that icken me not, openli I appende to hem that axiden not me but to ifrael he feith, al dai I streighte out mane honder to a peple that bilesy le not but a ghenfeide me.

CHAP. XI.

Herfore I fere, whethir god hath put awei his peple? geel torbe to. for I am an ifractite of the feed of abraham of the lynage of bentamy nogod hath not put awei his peple which he bifore knew, wher ghe witen not what the furipture feith in elie? hou he preieth god aghens struck, lord their han flays this protetus, their han "† undurdoluen thine auteris, and I am lett aloone and their feken my lyf but what forth goddis answer to him? I have left to me tenene thousands or men that han not bowid ber knees bifore baal, fo therfore alto and this tyme the relifs ben maad faat hi the chefying of the grace of god, and if it be bitthe grace of god it is not now of werkis, ellis grace is not now grace, what thanne? ifrael hath not geten this that he foughte, but elections hath geten, and the othere ben blyndid as it is writin, god ghaf to bem adpyryticly repuncers and ighen the tell at their ic not, and eeris that thei heere not into this dai, and dauyd feith, be the board of hem mand into a * gran bifore hem, an into catchyou & sat of lain dre and into gheldyng to hem, be the ighen of hem mand derk that thei fe not, and howe thou doun algatis the bak of hem. thertore I fele, wher thei offendiden so that thei senuiden falle down? god forbede, but bithe gift of hem heelthe is mand into bothen men that thei fue hem, that if the gilt of hom ben richellis of the world, and the making lette of hem ben richettis of hethen men, hou mych more the pleate of hem? but I fele to ghou hethen men, for as longe as I am apostic of bethen men I ichal onoure my mynyfterie it in ony maner I three my fletch for to hoowe, and that I make fumme of hem fual. for if the lois of hem is the recouncellying of the world, what is the + takying up but lyt of deede men? for it a littl part of that that is taufted be hooli, the hool gober is hooli. mel is the roote is book, all the braunchise what if ony of the braunchis ben brokun whomse them were a wielde olyue tree art graffid among lein, and art that I lawe of the route and or the orbids of the clause free ' rate then had glore as buist the braunchis. Is ref then geneth, then see at net the roote, but the roote this, there is thou is it the branches ben brekun that I be great in well for and if we the brainch's ben broking but this flor tall to tent, myle thou faucre high the ground drade th u, for it had sparale not the kyndeli braunches, left perment in he spare not thee, therefore fe the wife into been that baden down, but the prost cite of god into thee, if thou dwellift in goodnetie, ellis alfo thou fehalt be kit down, ghe and thei fehulen be fet you if the lwellen not in u to ue, ter god is myghti to fette hem yn eltfoone. for if thou art kit down of the kyndeli wielde olyue tree, and agreus kande art it to a good dane tree, hou mych more thei that ben bi kynde fehalen be fett in her olyue tree? but britheren I wole not, that ghe unknowe this mysterie, that ghe be not wife to ghou till, for blyndenetle hath teld aparti in ifrael til that the plente of hethene men entride, and lo al ifrael fehalde be maad faal as it is writun, he fehal come of Iyon that Johal deliuere and turne awey the wickidnesse of iacob. and this tellament to hem of me whanne I fehal do awei her fynnes, after the golpel thei ben enemyes for ghou, but thei ben mooft dereworthe bi the elections for the fadrisand the ghittie and the elepying of god ben without forthynkyng. and so funtyme alto ghe bileuyden not to god, but now ghe han gete merci for the unbilene of hem, fo and these now bileuyden not into ghoure merci, that also thei gete merci. for g al cloude togidre alle thingis in unbileue that he have merci on alle. a the highnetic of the richetlia of the wildom and of kunnyng of god, hou yncomprehentible ben hile domes? and hile weies ben unferchable. for whi, who knew the witt of the lord?

or who was his counscilor? or who formere ghat' to him and it schal be quyt to him? for of him and him and in him ben alle thingis, to him be glorie into +1 worldis of worldis, amen.

CHAP. XII.

Herbre brith ren I bleche ghou li them ret a. or and, that got ghose ghouse bodes a lyusing their half leftinge to god in I ghoure ferus to retonable, and nyle ghe be confourmed to this world, but be ghe refourmed in newencile of ghoure witt that ghe preve which is the wille of god good and well playing and perfit for I fee higher grace that s is even to me to a ie that ben amang ghou, that ghe lasere not more than it bih with te Issere, but for to ia ere to fohrmeite, and to ech man as god both departed the metare of feith for as in so bott we had manye membris, but alle the ment bus han not the time dear, to we mante ben up boots that had been been members one of snother, theriore we that han ghittis dynerfynge aftir the a. grace that is ghounn to us, either profecie after the reloun of feith, eithir feruyle in mynystn ge. eithir he that techith in tech nge, he that flys shafonar in monettinge, he that gyueth an fympleneile, he that is bacicyn in bilyneile, he that both mercy in gladrette, love with aten ferning, hitrage ruch, drawninge to good, louynge togidre by the charite of britterhood, ech come bilore to worlchipe othir, not flough in bilyneffe, feruent in fpyryt, ferusinge to the lord, joyinge in hope, partent in tribulactour, bits in preier, ghyuynge good to the ne-dis of feyntis, kepinge hospitalitie. blesse ghe men that purform ghou, Helle ghe and myle ghe curfe. for to joic with men that loien, for to wepe with men that wepen, feele ghe the fame thing togidre, to the try need by he things, but confentyinge to make things, nyle ghe be prudent anentis ghoufilt, to t. no man gheldinge yuel for yuel, but purueie ghe gracie thingis not confi bifore god, but also bifore are now, thit may be som "+ that you gh u, have the brish halls men, ghe north lie bris there, for detendance gheat a but has it gle pear to wriththe. HAT thing that was fro the big inning which we hereen which we i gen with oure igen, which we biheelden and oure honds touchtien of the word of hif, and the hif is schewid, and we faigen, and we witnessen and tellen to you " enerlashing has that was anentis the fadir and apperide to us. therfore we tellen to you that thing that we figen and herden, that also ye hage fell wickip with us and oure telowichip be with the fadir and with his fone iclu crift, and we writen this the g to you, that ye have fole, and that youre joic be ful and this is the to a ig that we her en of him and telen to you, that go has get and ther ben no derkne lit in hym. If we leten that we han Islawichip with him, and we wandren in derknetlis, we hen and duen not treather but if we walken In ligt as also he is in ligt we han sclawschip togidre, and the plant o als ent his tere clerith us fro al fynne, if we feien that we han no fynne we diffeygen utiliff, and treathe is not in us. if we knowlechen oure synnes, he is fetthful and just that he forgive to us oure fynnes, and cleufe us fro al wickiduetle. and if we felen that we han not fynned, we maken him a lier, and his word is not in us.

I little fonce, I write to sau the. the. s. that ye fynne not, but to sman is 11 we han an ally wat amentis the failer is district, and he is the forgifnelle for oure france, and not occur for oure fynnes but also for the fynnes of al the world, and in this thing we wittn that we knowen hym, if we kepen hife commaundementis. he that feith, that he knowith god, and kepith not hite corrustanderrentis is a ler, and treathe is not in him, but the charite of god to parify veril in hym that kepith his wird. in this thing we wifen that we ben in hym, it we ben part to in hym he that feith that he dwellith in hym, he owith for to walke as he walkide. mooft dere brithiren, I write to you pot a newe maundement, but the cite mandement that we had ten fro the bigy miving the elde maunitemert is the word that we herden, eliloone I write to you a newe maunifement that is trewe bothe in him and you, i'r derkne is ben pail i, and verrei light februarh now. he that feith, that he is in ligit and harth les prother is in derknesse jit. he that logeth his prother dwelligh in 19t, and selaundre is not in him. but he that hat th his brother is in decknells, and wandrith in dereptilis, and woot not which he goth, her derknellis han blyndid he igen. I the fines I write to you, that youre lyanes ben forgounn to you for his name, fadris, I write to you for ye han knownn him that is fro the bigynnyng. yonge men I write to you for ye han oucreomen

the wickid. I write to you youge children, for ye han knowe the lader. I write to you britheren for ye han knowun him that is fro the bigynnyng. I write to you yonge men, for ye ben itronge, and the word of god dwellith in you, and ye had comecomun the wick decrease the world, no the things that ben in the world it only man buith the world, the chante of the fadir is not in hymifor all thing that is in the world is concitife of flersche, and couritise of igen, and pride of 134, which is not of the fadir, but it is of the world. and the world schal passe, and the coucitie of it, but he that dorth the wille of god dwellith withouten ende, my lit e fenes, the last our is, and as ye han herd, that anticrift cometh, now many anticriftis benmand, whereve we witen, that it is the last our. their wenten forth fro us, but thei weren not of us, for it ther had len be of us, thei hadden dwelte with us, but that thei he knowen that thei ben not of us. but ve him anorating of the hooli gooft and knower alle thingis. I wroot not to you as to men that knowon not troube, but as to men that knowen it, and tir och loolyn is not of troutle while i let but this thir denseth, that into is not crist? this is antier it that desceth the fadir and the tone to ech that convert the teme harb not the fater, but he that knowlechith the fone lath that the fad r. that thing that we herden at the bigunning dwale it in teal brit that the g dwel than you which her larks at the bigs navige see for an dweet in tellione and in the fatte, and this is the bihacite that he while to us curelate that I wrom sinte this is to you of hen that a dequenty us and that the a writing which is read to the of him dweet in it is and we have not note that only man technique, but as his arm that carb you or alle the as, and it is trowe, and it is not letting, and as he is gre you dwele te is him, and now ye little t also dwe to te in him, that whi he he fehal appear we had a triff, and be not contourd I tot him in his coming it ye witen that he is not, whice ye also eah that doubt rigewinche is borun of hym.

Ш,

CE we what maner characte the failir gul to us, that we he named the fonce of god and be hile forms for this thing the world knewe not us, for it knew not hym. mooft dere britheren, now we ben the fones of god, and yit it apperide not what we schulen be, we witen that white he schill appere we schulen be lik hym, for we schulen se him as he is and each man that hath this exert him makith hympad boo t as he is boom. Celi man that douth fynne dath also wickidnesse, and his is wickthetie, and ye witen that he appear is to do awer fynnes, and fynne is not in hem ce't man that dwe lith in him funneth not, and ech that I with feeth not hym neithir knew him, at a first no man list you you, he that douth rigtwithelte is just, as also he is luft, he that douth lynne is of the deuel, for the deuel fynneth fro the bigynnyng. in this thing the fone of god apperide, that he undo the workis of the deadly each man that is augument god doith not fynne, for the feed of god dwellith in him, and he mai not do fynne, for he is borun of god. in this thing the fones of god ben knowun, and the fones of the lend, ech man that is not just is not of god, and he that loueth not his brothir is not of god. for this is the tellyng that ye herden at the biginning, that ye loue eche others, not as eavn that was of the yuel, and floug his brother. and for what thing floughe hym? for hife werkis D. weren yuele and his brotheris tuft. britheren nyle so we mate if the world hatath your we witen that we ben translated fro ocerh to lif, for we loaen britheren, he that loveth not dwellith in deeth, ech man that hatith his brother is a manifeer, and your ten that och manfleer bath not enertallinge lyt dwellynge in him, in this thing we han knowin the charite of god, for he puttide his lyf for us, and we owen to putte oure lyues for oure britheren. he that hath the catel of this world, and feeth that his brother hath nede and clotich bile entrails Iro I in, hou dwellath the charite of god in hym? my little fones, love we not in word, neither in tange, but in werke and treathe. In this thing we knowen, that we ben't treathe, and in his ligt we monethen oure herris, for it oure herre represent us, god is more than oure herte and know the alie thing is. mor it dere britheren, if oure herte repreueth nor us, we ban truft to god, and what over we fehalen axe we schulen rester ue of hym, for we kepen hise commandementis, and we doen the things that ben piclaunt bitore hym. and this is the commaundement of god, that we bileeue in the name of his fone left crift, & that we love eche othere as he gat heefte to us. and he that kepith hile commaunitementus dwellith in him, and he in him, and in * thing we witten that he dwellith in us bi the spirit whom he gal to us.

IIII.

Oost dere britheren, nyle ye bileene to ceh spirit, but preue ye spiritis if thei ben of god, for manye falle prophetis werten out into the world. in this thing the spirit of god is knowun : ech spirit that knowlechith that iele crift hath come in fleifthe is of god, and c h ipirit that for doith iclu is not of god; and this is anticrift of whom ye herden, that he cometh, and rigt new he is in the world. We little forces ben of god, and we han ouercomen hym, I r he that is in you is more than he that is in the world. thei ben of the world, therfore thei speken of the world, and the world heerith hem. we ben of god, he that knowith god becrith us, he that is not of god beerith not us; in this thing we knowen the spirit of treathe and the iparit of errour, moost dere britheren, lose + we togidre, for charite is of god, as I ech that leveth c, his brother is boron of god and knowith god he that leaeth not knowith not god, for god is charite. in this thing the chai te of god appen ie in us, for god fente his oon biget in lone into the world that we lyne by hym. in this thing is charite, not as we hadden leved god, bir for he first leayde us, and tente his fone forgifnelle for oure fynnes, ye mooft dere britheren, if god louyde us, we owen to loue ech othere, no man faig ever god, if we loven togidre, god dweilith in us, and the charite of him is parfyt in us. in thu thing we knowen that we dwellen in him and he in us, for of his spirit he gaf to us; and we figen and witnessen, that the fadir fente his fone fautour of the world, whoever knowledgeith, that tefu is the fune of god, god twel the in him, and he in god. and we has known and bileeuen to the charite that god hath in us. god is charite, and he that dwel th in charite dwelath in god, and god in him. in this thing is the party t chante of god with us, that we have trutt in the dai of doom, for as he is, a to we ben in this world. drede is not in charite, bit parfyt charite puttith out drede, for drede hath payne, but he that dredith is not parfyt in charite. therfore loue we god, for he louvele us bifore if our man feith, that I lone god, and harrh his brother, he is a ber, for he that loueth not his brother which he feeth, hen mai he loue god whom he feeth not? and we han this commissindement of god, that he that loueth god loue allo his brothir,

CH man that b lecueth that iefu is er it is borun et god, and ech man that leacth I in that gendrale I with him that is borner of him. in this thing we knewen, that we loven the children of god, what he we loven god and doen hite may fement at for this is the chartest good that we kepe hate maundaments, and hite max leirest's ben not bear it it at thing that is borun of god ouere-meth the world, and this is the vict me that overcometh the word, cure tert. and who is he that ourremeth the world but he that I decueth that lefus is the time of god? this is jolus or it that cain be water and blood, not in water centi, but in water and blood and the spirit is he that witnessith, that wrift is treathe, for three ben that given witnessigns in beuene, the fache, the fone, and the hooli gooft, an I these three ben conand three ben that gauen witnessing in eithe, the ipirat, were and blood, and their three ben oon. if we rethruen the wantilveg of men, the witnessfring of god is more, for this is the witnessign of god that is more, for he witheliste of his fone. he that bilecueth into the I me of good hath the wirecilly ng of god in harn, he that bilicueth not to the fone mak th him a lier, I r be beleeneth not in the witeneily ag that god war liste of his tone, and this is the wat selling for god gut to you encilally oge ly i, and this lat is to his fone. be that hath the fone of god hath also lyf, he that hath not the sone of god bath not let. I write to you thele thinging that ye wite that we han e icrlaftinge lyf whiche bileeuen in the name of goddis sone, and this is the tritt which we hanto god, that what ever thing we axen after his wille, he schal heere us. and we witen that he heerith us, whatever thing we exen, we wiren that we han the "thing is whiche we agen of him, he that woot that his best in frameth a france not to the aceth, axe he and lyf fehal be gouen to him that fynneth not to deeth. ther is a finne to do th, not for it I face that & one pire e. each wackt hetle is fynne, and I ther is synne to deeth, we witen that ech man that is borun of god fynneth not, but the generacioun of god ket th ham, and the washed touchith harn not we within that we ben of god, and al the world is it in yuel, and we witen that the fone of god cam in fleifche and gaf to us witt, that we knowe verrei god, and be in the verrei fone of hym. this is verrei god, and eucrlastynge lyt. my little fones kepe ye you fro mawmeria.
